Students are savvy with social media and cyber bullying...ARE YOU?

Thursday, November 9, 2017

7:00 p.m.

While often dismissed as “just a part of growing up,” bullying is a major issue for students of all ages. This program will specifically look at the role technology now plays in bullying, examining the impact of cyberbullying through social media. Different tools and approaches to online safety will be discussed in an effort to prevent victimization. Parents will learn some ins and outs of the most common social media platforms students are currently using. Parents will leave this program better equipped to have real conversations with their children about social media and the concerns of cyberbullying.
